3. The bingo game can involve 1 row/column first, and then a full house (basic bingo rules apply but you may want to explain these to younger children to ensure they know what they are doing).
4. Once everyone has chosen, randomly read out items on the list until someone has a row/column.
5. Once someone has done this, move on to a full house
6. You can repeat this game as many times as you want (we would suggest 3 times is a good amount).
7. As a prize, you may want to get the winner to be able to be the bingo master next time around, and you yourself can play.
8. Why not try it with a range of activities and ask your young people to fill their grids with their favourites. This will give you some quick and easy feedback on their preferred activities!
